Teaching

At Kent I taught, at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels, courses in social theory, political sociology, historical sociology, nationalism, the comparative sociology of industrial societies, society and politics in the USA, the social and political analysis of European societies, and the sociology of literature and culture. My PhD supervisions were mostly concerned with aspects of the historical sociology of western industrial societies, such as revolutions, nationalism, the role of intellectuals, and the sociology of nineteenth-century English literature.

At the University of Virginia I have continued to teach, again at undergraduate and graduate levels, social theory (classical and contemporary), political sociology, historical sociology, the sociology of nationalism, the sociology of empires, and the sociology of literature. I have also taught the first-year introductory sociology course, given a USEM (first-year undergraduate) course on nations and nationalism, and twice taught a Pavilion seminar on empires.

Service

I have at various times, at Kent, been Chairman of the Department of Sociology and Social Anthropology, Undergraduate Director of Studies and Graduate Director of Studies in Sociology. I have also been a member of the T.S. Eliot Memorial Lectures Committee (Kent University and Faber and Faber), and a Council member of the Centre for the Study of Religion and Society (University of Kent and Canterbury Cathedral).

At Virginia I was chairman of the Page-Barbour and Richard Lectures Committee, 1999-2003. I was also a member of the committee of the Forum for Contemporary Thought (2004-9). In Dec-Jan 2001-2 and again Dec-Jan 2002-3 I was a member of the Dean's Promotion and Tenure Committee. In 2006-9 I was a member of the Faculty Steering Committee, advising the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

From 2007-13 I was chair of the department of sociology. For the department I have also chaired three search committees and a number of tenure committees, and been Director of Graduate Admissions. I have also chaired committees for the selection of graduate Jefferson scholars, and been a member of the committee for the selection of undergraduate Jefferson scholars.

I am a Faculty Fellow of the Institute of Advanced Studies in Culture, and a past Faculty Fellow of Brown College (both UVA). Between 2007-11 I was a Director of the Tuesday Evening Concert Series at UVA, and a member of its Program Committee. I am Fellow of the Society of Fellows. I am on the Advisory Board of the Institute of Humanities and Global Cultures.
